

Thanksgiving Activities

I was listening to a Christian radio station one day while running errands and they were telling funny Thanksgiving Day stories. I was laughing so loud and hard I began to tear up. That year I scoured the internet for funny Thanksgiving stories. I printed them out on light colored seasonal papers. Cut them up, folded them, put them in a bowl that I had nearby where I was sitting. When the time was right, I got the bowl, we passed it around, everyone took one at a time until they were all passed out. Each person read it out loud. We helped the little kids read them too. It was such hysterical fun to do this that it will become part of our tradition. We put them all back into a container to reuse again.

I've heard about a "Pin the Tail on the Turkey" game. That would be great for little ones. I wouldn't turn them too much though, their little tummies are quite full and we don't want them getting upset!

Of course, there are usually football games to watch. And you could set out munchies at this time too.
